

Question marks

The question mark looks like an ear because you need to listen for what is being asked. Questions always ask for the answer to something.

Types of question words are:

how, what, when, who and where.

Look at these sentences and find the questions. If the sentence is a question put a tick (✓) at the beginning and a question mark (?) at the end of it. If it is not a question then put a cross (x) at the beginning and a full stop (.) at the end of it. The first two have been done for you.

✓	What is your name?
x	I have a brown dog.
	Where do you live
	When is your birthday
	My teacher's name is Mr. Green
	How many sisters do you have
	Who ate the cake
	My friend has a new toy

Now think of five questions that you could ask a friend. Ask them to tell you the answers to these questions. If they cannot answer your question, then you probably did not ask a question.

Reading and Phonics

Punctuation: question marks.